TEACHING | SECONDARY AT CORIO

Teachers | Secondary at Corio choose to join a largely residential community and are thus involved in supporting students in a host of different ways. This provides for an opportunity to develop a very full relationship with students and thus a chance to play a significant role in their overall education – academic, physical, spiritual and moral – and in doing so give them the opportunity to recognise and develop their talents. More importantly, we hope that the students can develop courage in themselves and foster the courage in others to love and to use their talents productively. Through this comes hope and direction.

These opportunities arise out of teaching, games, house duty, religious and co-curricular activities and also indirectly through social events – connections that develop from formal links and the interaction that comes from being part of such a residential community.

Although it is impossible to set down exact duties as they may vary from year to year and in some cases between teachers, in general, Teachers | Secondary at Corio are involved in:

1. Teaching classes. The normal teaching load at present is 35 hours of face-to-face normal classroom teaching in a ten-day cycle. As in all schools, staff are also involved in the normal administrative tasks, membership of subject committees and have a commitment to professional development. These activities that are part and parcel of being a good classroom teacher.
2. Cocurricular activities. Sport and activities are an important component of our programme at Corio. They provide opportunities for physical, social and emotional development and are viewed as part of what is important in the broad liberal education of young people. Staff should be involved in such activities throughout the academic year. At present this means involvement in games and/or activities during the week and on Saturdays. Some staff take up the opportunity of being in charge of various sports and activities.
3. House duty. Corio is based on the House System. Teaching staff are involved in pastoral and administrative duties in houses. These duties vary between boarding and day boarding houses and between Senior and Middle School. Staff who reside on campus are typically involved in some weekend and weekday/evening duties. Teaching staff may undertake the care of a House Mentor group of approximately 12 students.

The above represents a full and busy life. It also represents an opportunity to be part of a community. A community of teachers living and working together offers a remarkable opportunity for education. All the ways that we learn are made possible in such an environment. More importantly, it provides the time and variety of contact necessary to join the important traditions of our society. Our tradition both in words and practice must be one of respect for every member of our community. That is the foundation of our moral life and it creates an environment in which learning and hope can thrive. We must also acknowledge our great intellectual and spiritual inheritance. We must recognise that the education we offer is an apprenticeship in its ways. This is not to accept bigotry or stagnation. To join that tradition is to take on questioning, dispute and change. It is to recognise authority, but authority that demands investigation, discovery and invention.
